STERN DRIVES

01

Seen from the stern, the Kumbra 43 reveals its essence:
soft lines that flow seamlessly, a generous platform that blends into the sea,
and a design that breathes balance.
No harsh edges, no excess just a continuity crafted to make space feel free and open.

02

The sunbed becomes the quiet heart of the deck.
Its subtle form, integrated volumes, and the play of light over soft fabrics speak of silent comfort. Here, rest is more than physical it's visual, emotional, complete.

03

Every curve of the hull and deck has intention:
To guide the eye, ease movement, and reinforce harmony.
Every time you look at it, you would discover new perspectives and angles.
The geometry of the Kumbra 43 doesn't shout but it leaves a mark.
This is design in service of the sea.

04

The Kumbra 43 doesn't try to dominate its surroundings it becomes part of them.
The wide, open stern isn't just a passage to the water, it moves with it. A constant invitation to pause, look back...
and linger a little longer.

The owner's cabin of the Kumbra 43 has been conceived as a true home at sea. From the very first moment, the space conveys a sense of warmth and functionality, where every detail is thoughtfully designed to support life on board not just to meet basic needs.

The curved sofa, upholstered in soft, inviting fabrics, gently follows the lines of the hull. It offers a space to unwind, read, or simply take in the view through the side windows, where the sea becomes part of the interior. Its geometry is not decorative it supports the natural flow of the design and enhances spatial continuity.

At the far end, the owner’s bed takes center stage without overpowering the space. Framed by a fabric headboard, subtle shelving, and soft ambient lighting, it offers true rest designed to feel like home. Natural light filters in both sides during the day, filling the cabin with calm, while at night, indirect lighting creates a warm and gentle atmosphere.

The chosen materials Dekton, wood, and refined textiles complement each other with quiet balance. There is no excess, only a deliberate search for harmony and long lasting quality.

Ultimately, this cabin isn’t meant to impress it’s meant to embrace.
A space that breathes, that welcomes, that moves with the sea and yet remains still.
A place to live, to dream, and to return to. A floating home in every sense.

From the bed, the curved forms of the Kumbra 43 come to life under LED lighting that flows gently through the space. The indirect light doesn't just illuminate, it softens, and highlights every contour of the design.

The aft cabin of the Kumbra 43 redefines what it means to rest at sea.
Two generous beds of 1.30m and 1.40m wide to offer absolute comfort.
LED lighting, seamlessly integrated into the hull's curves, creates a warm, sophisticated atmosphere.
Each line of light traces the space with intention, highlighting form and bringing calm.
The height, volume, and finishes elevate this space far beyond what one expects below deck.
You don't just sleep here you disconnect, you drift.
A cabin of brutal comfort that becomes a must...

The warmth of the space is fully revealed.
The organically shaped backlit mirror, the neutral tones, and the contrast between Dekton and wood create a cozy atmosphere, striking a perfect balance between style and practicality.
The integrated sink and built in storage maintain visual harmony and reinforce the feeling of a homelike bathroom warm, intimate, and perfectly resolved.

The bathroom of the Kumbra 43 reflects a quiet elegance.
The curved wooden vanity embraces a Dekton countertop with an integrated sink, combining functionality with a fluid, cohesive design.
Natural light filters in gently, while the glass enclosed shower and marble effect wall add depth and sophistication to the space.
Every detail is designed to feel like home even in the middle of the sea.

DECH LAYOUT

INTERIOR LAYOUT

The Kumbra 43 is more than a boat it’s a statement of intent.
Every line, every material, and every proportion has been conceived with one guiding principle: design is everything.
A perfect balance between sophistication and functionality, between aesthetics and life on board.
Here, elegance doesn’t decorate it defines.
And the sea, more than a destination, becomes part of the space.
Welcome to a new language of navigation.

FROM SAILORS TO SAILORS

Kumbra 43 emerges as the new flagship of the sea, revealing itself with quiet purpose–
not here to pass through,

but to belong...
